

Latinos & Food Justice:

How do we create community-level change?

Closing the Hunger Gap 2017

Our Panel

Moderator: Catarina Rivera, Washington Heights/Inwood Community Engagement Manager, City Harvest

Estefania Narvaez, West Regional Coordinator, Real Food Challenge

Minerva Delgado, Director of Coalitions and Advocacy, Alliance to End Hunger

Hilda Gutierrez, Food Access Director, Sustainable Food Center

How does the issue of food justice relate to Latinos? What challenges do we see and what opportunities do we see?

Is there value to having a separate conversation about the Latinx population? Some may say there is not a need to break out this conversation.

The narrative of individual responsibility for health is widespread, even among our policy decisionmakers. How do we change this narrative and shift it away from personal responsibility to systems level thinking?

When an organization is working with the Latinx population and wants to do so in an equitable way,
what should it keep in mind?

What is the role of language access in engaging Latinx communities?

How do we create community-level change and work on developing food justice for the Latinx community?

Q&A

Questions, Responses, Thoughts, Comments?

Thank You!

Catarina Rivera, crivera@cityharvest.org

Estefania Narvaez, estefania@realfoodchallenge.org

Hilda Gutierrez, Hilda@sustainablefoodcenter.org

Minerva Delgado, mdelgado@alliancetoendhunger.org